

Experimentelle Archäologie in Deutschland Bilanz 1996

(Bulletin VAAE jrg 2, nr 3 (1997), pg 20-21)

In 1997 another issue appeared in the series 'Experimentelle Archäologie in Deutschland', i.e. 'Bilanz 1996'. In this book, ten experiments are described, varying from the reconstruction of an iron age oven in western Holland (see Bulletin, jrg 1, nr 1) to attempts of making bone combs of three layers to a description of the archaeological festival in Biskupin, Poland in 1995 and information on tar extraction. Although very variable of point of view, (scientific or informative) all articles are interesting to read. Of course this book, like actually the whole series, is a 'must' for every experimental archaeologist!
